THE TAZEWELL BAR HOLDS A MEETING

And Adopts Resolutions With Reference to the Death of T. E. George and Judge John H. Fulton.

On Monday afternoon, the 4th inst., at four o'clock business in the circuit court was suspended for the purpose of holding a meeting of the Tazewell Bar to adopt resolutions appropriate to the death of T. E. George, late clerk of Tazewell county, and of Judge John H. Fulton, who was for a number of years judge of the circuit court, and afterwards a practicing lawyer here. Judge Henson presided over the meeting.

The following resolutions and tributes to Judge Fulton and Mr. George were introduced by Judge Graham and Mr. A. S. Higginbotham, respectively. Very appropriate and feeling oral tributes were paid to the deceased by Judges Graham and Henson, Messrs. J. W. Chapman, A. P. Gillespie, A. S. Higginbotham and others.

VIRGINIA—At a session of the Circuit Court of Tazewell county, held at the courthouse thereof on the 4th day of March, 1907, Honorable W. J. Henson presiding.

On this day there was held in open court a meeting of the members of the Tazewell bar and the officers of the court, and the Judge ordered that the business of the court be suspended, as a token of respect for the memory of Thomas Edwin George, the late clerk of this county and court, who died on the fourth day of January last, in his fifty-seventh year. The following resolution having been read and adopted, the Judge directed that the same be spread upon the order book of the court.

RESOLUTION.

In the death of T. E. George, this court has lost a faithful, experienced and useful officer; one who has served the people of this county, in the capacity of clerk, for many years. Throughout his long career as a trusted public servant, we are able to testify that we know of no blot upon his official record, and not even a suspicion against his integrity.

In his death, the Judge of the court, the members of the Tazewell bar and the officers of the court, one and all, have lost from our midst a warm-hearted and noble-souled man, who was our friend and companion.

We can further testify that the citizens of this county have lost a beloved public servant, one who was their common friend and counsellor, and to whom all classes and conditions were in the habit of going for help and advice. The life of such a man cannot be in vain, but, in truth, is bound to have served a good purpose.

From the standpoint of the public, we believe that the interests of our country have been promoted by his unselfish, courageous and vigilant efforts on behalf of an honest and conservative administration of county affairs. From a personal standpoint, we feel that we are wiser and better from having known him.

There is another and more painful loss, the loss suffered by his family. Our hearts are full of sympathy for those who were nearest and dearest to him. We know that his family has lost a devoted and loving husband and father. He was indulgent and thoughtful to the fullest extent.

Ed. George still lives in the hearts of his fellow-men, and he has left behind him a good record and honored name, which will not soon be forgotten, but will endure, and prove a comfort and help to each member of his family throughout life.

It is further resolved that four copies hereof, attested by the Judge of the court, be sent to Mrs. Julia B. George and family, and that copies be handed to the Tazewell Republican, Clinch Valley News and the Pocahontas Headlight for publication.

W. J. HENSON, Judge.

The Judge of the court, and members of the Bar of Tazewell County desire the following tribute to the memory of the late Judge John H. Fulton to be of record:

Judge Fulton occupied the position of Circuit Judge of this County from January, 1870, to May, 1887, when he resigned. He was really charged with blazing the way for a new order of things and of moulding the jurisprudence of this State to fit the Underwood Constitution, and the changes incident to the result of the war between the States, and of reconstruction. This was a task for no ordinary mind; but we can attest that Judge Fulton, though comparatively young and inexperienced, when he entered upon these arduous and responsible duties, measured up to the requirements; readily commanding the respect and love of the bar and people—prompt, polite and courteous in his official duties—impartial and careful in his judgments, from which appeals were rarely taken, and which were more rarely reversed.

When he resigned his office to engage in the practice of law, he declared that he would, and he did, regularly attend the courts of this county. He succeeded rapidly here, as elsewhere, in acquiring a large law practice, involving important cases, something that is seldom accomplished so quickly; by one occupying the bench as long as Judge Fulton did. He carried the judicial faculty into his practice as a lawyer; and while he bore himself in the cause of his clients always as a lawyer and advocate, being zealous and alert, but never incautious, always keeping in mind that the principle of the jurisprudence, which he invoked for the cause of his clients were founded upon high principles of moral philosophy and abstract right and justice. He was open, frank and honest in all his engagements at the bar; but he mastered the law and facts of his causes, and when convinced that he was in the right he exhibited great force and power, courage and persistence.

Being seriously and painfully maimed as a volunteer in the war between the States, in consequence of which he constantly bore himself upon his crutches, we never failed to remember that he had been a brave soldier and officer in the Confederate Army. The "Lost Cause" was always dear to him, and he was alert as a veteran in seeing justice done in the history of the cause. Expressing our estimate of Judge Fulton, we do not hesitate to declare that he deserves to be ranked as one of the great lawyers and jurists of the State, and that throughout his life he faithfully discharged his duty to the States, to his clients, his family and his friends.

It is further resolved that a copy hereof, attested by the Judge of the Court, be sent to the family, and that copies be handed to the Tazewell Republican, Clinch Valley News and the Pocahontas Headlight for publication.

New York, March, 2.—Governor Hughes in the course of a speech tonight declared that it was his desire that there should be a recount of the votes cast in the Mayoralty election in this city in 1905. It was not a question of personal interest he added but of the seating of the candidate elected.

Governor Hughes was the chief speaker at the complimentary banquet tendered to night to "Today" Hamilton, whose retirement to private life was the occasion of a notable gathering of newspaper men and other personal friends of the widely-known publicity agent.

GRAND CAMP OCTOBER 18.

This is to be the Great Day for the Confederates at Jamestown.

Norfolk, Va., March 2.—The Grand Camp, Confederate Veterans of Virginia, has selected October 18 as grand camp day at the Jamestown Exposition. This day will be the climax of the annual session of the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans, which will be held at the exposition beginning the 16th of October and will be the most novel and notable event in the history of the organization.

In a letter from Col. William H. Stewart, grand commander of the grand camp, to Lieut. H. N. Cootes, military secretary of the exposition company, asking for October 18 as special grand camp day, it was stated that a musical entertainment by a uniform choir, singing war songs, would be one of the features of the regular sessions. These choirs are to be composed of young ladies and will be trained by accomplished vocalists.

Colonel Stewart has issued a circular to the commanders of camps of Confederate Veterans, asking that they take up the organization of choirs in their respective camps and to have the choirs ready for the opening session of the grand camp. He states that two or three camps have already adopted the plan, which has acted like magic in giving life and interest to camp work.

He says in the circular: "It is a beautiful idea, this singing of the old war songs that cheered the Confederate soldier along many a weary march, and made bright for him his sombre bivouac in the pines, before he wrapped his blanket about him and lay down to dream of home."

"Now that the battles are past and the march on which he trudges is that along the path of life, one which for most of the gallant soldiers of the south is broadening out to the glory of a more perfect day, the music of these sweet-voiced daughters of Dixie, heard in the familiar airs dear to the hearts of the veterans, cheers them again, even as the same songs, sung with all the martial ardor of young hearts and voices, did in the long ago."

These choirs are to wear the veteran coat of gray and the camp hat, with appropriate skirts, and will make an impressive appearance.

Good news, interesting and up-to-date, of the State National Guard appears in "The Press" every Sunday. A special feature is made of this news and the article is written by a commissioned officer who is recognized as an authority in the matter.

59TH CONGRESS HAS ADJOURNED

Members at Final Session Give Plain Evidence of Fatigue.

160 NOMINATIONS NOT CONFIRMED

Peonage First Subject to Engage Attention of House and Representative Clark Makes Bitter Attack on Newspapers—Adopt Conference Report on Railway Bill.

Washington, March 4.—Both houses of congress met at an unusually early hour, 9:30 o'clock, for the last sitting of the Fifty-Ninth congress. The attendance was slim, both in the senate and house, and those present showed unmistakable signs of fatigue due to the almost continual meetings since Saturday morning.

Both Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon were prompt in arriving and each called to order the body over which he presided.

The house proceeded with business as if the entire session was still before it, but the senate finding itself without a quorum and with all absolutely necessary routine business disposed of, took a recess a few minutes after assembling, and it was at once made evident that there would be no further serious efforts to secure action on the ship subsidy bill, or upon any disputed measure.

Senator Carmack was in his seat when the session began and his desk was piled high with a formidable array of documents, showing his preparedness to continue his fight against consideration of the subsidy bill.

He openly declared his purpose of speaking until 12 o'clock, if necessary, but the motion for a recess made by Senator Hale evidently was welcome news to him.

The ship subsidy bill finally received a quietus in the senate when Senator Gallinger arose and finally announced his decision not to press it for further consideration. Before making this he made a last request for a vote, whereupon Mr. Carmack expressed regret "that the bill would still lead to an extended debate." Mr. Gallinger then made a final announcement that he would not further press the measure.

The senate adjourned sine die at 12:13 and the house at 12:20.

The vice president and Mrs. Fairbanks left at 3:45 p. m. for Indianapolis Ind.

The president sent to the senate today the name of James B. Campbell to be postmaster at New Cumberland, W. Va.

When congress adjourned today there remained about 160 nominations by the president which had not been confirmed.

President Alders Russian Sufferers.

Washington, March 4.—Declaring that Russia has been a good friend to America in the past, President Roosevelt, in a letter to the Russian famine relief committee of New York, made public today, appeals for contributions in behalf of the famine sufferers in that country. With the letter he sent his own check for $100. He calls attention to the present "literally unprecedented prosperity in this country," and hopes that our people, out of their abundance, will give generously on this occasion.

His letter is in reply to one received from the committee calling his attention to the urgent need of assistance.

Russian Parliament Begins With Great Demonstration, But With No Bloodshed—St. Petersburg Prefect Uses Forceful Policy.

St. Petersburg, March 5.—The opening day of the Duma, or lower house of the Russian Parliament, although in itself devoid of interest, was made the occasion of a great revolutionary demonstration by the St. Petersburg proletariats and the students of the city, which resulted in several encounters between the police and the populace, and more or less serious injury to a number of the latter.

The situation was such that the authorities were finally forced to fill the streets with military, as in the ominous days of the Trepoff regime. After adjournment of the session of the House, a tumultuous crowd, by this time estimated to number close to forty thousand persons, with red banners flying and accompanied by the music of revolutionary chants, started, like the followers of Father Gapon, on January 22, 1905, toward the central quarter of the city, where the Winter Palace of the Emperor is located.

Few elements of the prelude of "red Sunday" were lacking, and the command, "fire," would have precipitated a similar massacre. But the present prefect of St. Petersburg, General Dracheffski, followed another course and dispersed the procession by charges of mounted gendarmes, armed with whips, and by an imposing display of force, he prevented the demonstrators from reforming.

During the long hours of the morning and afternoon, the police guarding the Tauride Palace acted with great forbearance, giving the spectators a free vent in singing and cheering, and only interfering to prevent the people from forcing their way into the palace.

IMPORTANT DEVICE TO REVOLUTIONIZE COTTON CULTURE.

Machine Perfected by Government Experts Removes Fuz and Separates Light From Heavy Seed.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—One of the most important devices in the history of cotton culture practically has been perfected by experts of the Department of Agriculture.

It is a machine for the removal of the fuz on cotton seed and for the separation of light from heavy seed.

The process has been in course of development for about two years. It is the opinion of the cotton experts of the department that its universal use would effect a saving of about ten per cent of the entire cotton crop.

As the crop of America amounts to about $750,000,000 a year, it easily can be realized that such a saving would be of vast importance.

By the removal of fuz from the cotton seed the seed may be planted with an ordinary gravity drill. By the ease with which the smooth seed can be manipulated they can be planted in hills without unnecessary waste, and the plants so located can be tilled in two directions.

The machine, it is stated, can be made at small expense. As the invention is in the hands of the government, cotton planters who use it will not have to pay royalty for it.
